1112: Sic et non

There are many seeming contradictions and even obscurities in the innumerable writings of the church fathers. Our respect for their authority should not stand in the way of an effort on our part to come at the truth.

In view of these considerations, I have ventured to bring together various dicta of the holy fathers, as they came to mind, and to formulate certain questions which were suggested by the seeming contradictions in the statements. These questions ought to serve to excite tender readers to a zealous inquiry into truth and so sharpen their wits. The master key of knowledge is, indeed, a persistent and frequent questioning. Aristotle, the most clear-sighted of all the philosophers, was desirous above all things else to arouse this questioning spirit, for in his Categories he exhorts a student as follows: "It may well be difficult to reach a positive conclusion in these matters unless they be frequently discussed. It is by no means fruitless to be doubtful on particular points. " By doubting we come to examine, and by examining we reach the truth.

Rozum ↔ Vôľa

Tomáš Akvinský: vôľa koná to, čo jej rozum predostrie ako najvyššie dobro

Duns Scotus: Rozum ukazuje vôli, čo je možné, vôľa si môže vybrať

Sloboda Stvoriteľa: Veci sú také, aké sú, nie preto, že to rozum vyžaduje, ale preto, že ich takými učinila slobodná Božia vôľa.
